

Pappas Stations use the public airwaves free of charge. They are required by law to provide equal time for opposing candidates. For them to give away airtime as a political "contribution" is disingenuous at best, if not downright illegal. This is just one more reason we should be strengthening media ownership rules, not weakening them. When it's time for Pappas to renew it's license agreement with the FCC, this abuse of the public airwaves should be seriously taken into consideration.
